

COLIN ALLEN: No.

PETER GROVER: You didn't know where to go from there on in that like coincided with your ticket?

COLIN ALLEN: Yeah.

PETER GROVER: What about the presence of police or stewards on this concourse?

COLIN ALLEN: No one, absolutely no one.

PETER GROVER: Nobody?

COLIN ALLEN: I actually said to Liam on the phone it would have just take one police officer or one steward to stand at that tunnel entrance and say to people, "Sorry boys, it's full, go either side" and that would have been it, end of, not one life lost. It's as simple as that.

PETER GROVER: Right. I'm sorry to go back to the time but it is important when it was because that gate was opened more than once.

COLIN ALLEN: Right.

PETER GROVER: Okay, as were the other gates, Gate B and Gate A were all opened at various times, controlled opening just to let a few through. Gate C, is opened more than once, the last time was when the big mass went
